

TIPS FOR FADING

- Open and consistent communication with the employer/supervisor
- Organize regular visits
 - The student does not have to be aware of these visits, but the employer should be kept aware.
- Develop a continued support plan
 - This should include data collection.
 - These data should be evaluated and modified if necessary based on performance.
- Set up a self-monitoring system to track student performance
- Seek performance evaluation and feedback from co-workers and supervisors frequently
- Remember the helpful timeline below when considering the order and way in which you may fade your support from the workplace.

